SD Art Prize Mission: Fusing Energy for San Diego Visual Arts: Mentorship, Education, Recognition, Collaboration

The SD ART PRIZE is dedicated to the idea that the visual arts are a necessary and rewarding ingredient of any world-class city and a building block of the lifestyle of its residents. Conceived to promote and encourage dialogue, reflection and social interaction about San Diego's artistic and cultural life, this annual award honors artistic expression. The SD ART PRIZE, a cash prize with exhibition opportunities, spotlights established San Diego artists and emerging artists each season whose outstanding achievements in the field of Visual Arts merit the recognition.

THE Goals of the SD ART PRIZE, as presented by the San Diego Visual Arts Network, are to:

- Recognize and celebrate existing visual art accomplishments by spotlighting local artists.
- Create an exciting event that facilitates cross-pollination between cultural organizations and strengthens and invigorates the San Diego Visual Art Scene.
- Broaden the audience of the visual arts in San Diego by gaining national attention to the competition through a dedicated media campaign.
- Promote the vision of the future role that the visual arts will play in the San Diego community as lively, thriving, positive and empowering.
- Expand the infrastructure of spokespeople/art celebrities who can bring awareness to San Diego and perform as role models for our student artists.

Presented By:

SAN DIEGO VISUAL ARTS NETWORK (SDVAN.NET)

A data base of information produced to improve the clarity, accuracy and sophistication of discourse about San Diego's artistic and cultural life and which is dedicated to re-enforce the idea that the Visual Arts are a necessary and vital part of the health of our city. The goal of the ART PRIZE has been the goal of SDVAN since its founding by a committee of major art leaders in the San Diego region. With over 800 art resources on the site, SDVAN has become one of the main sources for disseminating information, encouraging collaborations and aiding in cross pollination between all the arts. With its expanding infrastructure of spokespersons, SDVAN is able to promote the vision of the future role that the visual arts will play in the San Diego community as lively, thriving, positive and empowered.

ART SAN DIEGO CONTEMPORARY ART FAIR (artsandiego-fair.com)

ART SAN DIEGO takes place every year in September now at the Activity Center in Balboa Park with an exhibition of more than 50 galleries showing and selling paintings, sculpture, drawings, prints, photographs, video, and cutting edge multimedia artwork. The 4-day schedule includes lectures and conferences with renowned guest speakers; luxury brand displays; city-wide concurrent programs; and a range of exclusive wine and food events.

ATHENAEUM MUSIC & ARTS LIBRARY (<http://www.ljathenaeum.org>)

The Athenaeum Music & Arts Library has earned a reputation as one of the outstanding art galleries and art collectors in San Diego. The Athenaeum's art exhibition program, begun in the 1920s, has grown tremendously in Exhibitions in the Joseph Clayes III Gallery focusing on nationally and internationally recognized artists. The Rotunda Gallery emphasizes community partnerships or emerging regional artists. The North Reading Room, opened during the library's expansion in 2007, is devoted to showcasing the Athenaeum's Erika and Fred Torri Artists' Books Collection.

Building a Bigger Audience for Art: Why the San Diego Art Prize Has Mattered

By Robert L. Pincus, 2010

Art criticism is subjective and the best of it is subjective in an informed sense. Readers have a right to think that the person expressing an opinion about an artist's work knows a good deal about art history as well as contemporary work. Art lovers also have a right to expect those who award art prizes have constructed a considered view of the works they recognize.

Criticism and prizes, when they are persuasive, share another function: They focus our attention on deserving work. A sound piece of writing will, if it succeeds, probably persuade you to see the art being chronicled for yourself. So, too, can an award process, particularly when, as is the case with the San Diego Art Prize, the winners are given an exhibition as part of the recognition they receive.

With a four cycle history to its name thus far, beginning with 2006-2007, the San Diego Art Prize has existed long enough for us to form a view as to whether it has enriched the local scene and has focused attention on artists who deserve new or renewed attention. I contend that it has done both. The prize has redoubled our appreciation of established artists in our midst and directed it toward others with far less exposure.

Looking at the roster thus far suggests that it is individuality, the ability to realize a distinct vision, which has taken precedence over any particular style or school of work. In the process, the San Diego Art Prize has recognized an admirable cross-section of artists, from the first round (2006-2007) to the current one. Sure, those of us who have chronicled the art history of this region for many years, as I have, would want to add other artists to the list. But there isn't an artist who has been chosen to date who hasn't deserved to be on the list.

The prize has recognized a major figure like Eleanor Antin (in 2007-08), who has been widely recognized for her contribution to conceptual image making for four-plus decades. And it has singled out a preeminent local painter, Richard Allen Morris (in 2009), who worked in relative obscurity for decades and only received his international due in the last six or seven years.

Then, there is that marvelous dimension of the prize: each established artist gets to choose an emerging or lesser known artist -- in most cases with an eye toward exhibiting along with that artist. The selections for 2010, in this respect, affirm the virtue of this approach. Gail Roberts, a highly accomplished painter, has chosen David Adey, who has presented memorable exhibitions in the past two years of his craft punch pictures and sculptural installations. Einar and Jamex de la Torre, whose intricate, virtuosic sculptures caustically mix and mingle pop culture references with traditional Catholic iconography, have picked Julio Orozco, who takes the industrial refuse of Tijuana and turns it into elegant compositions with an undercurrent of commentary.

If you want to begin to understand the richness of art being made in San Diego and the nearby portions of Baja California, take a look at the complete list of San Diego Art Prize winners. After perusing it in the online exhibition catalog, seeing their art for yourself is the next step. If you are persuaded to do so, which seems likely, this prize will have served a great purpose: building an audience for noteworthy art being made in San Diego. Art criticism does the same, when it succeeds. They are different means to the same valuable end.

2014 SD ART PRIZE RECIPIENTS

Marianela de la Hoz with Bhavna Mehta

Philipp Scholz Rittermann with Joseph Huppert

Marianela de la Hoz

Marianela de la Hoz paints using the ancient medium known as egg tempera, with a contemporary look into current images. The works are extremely detailed, delicate and precise. She seeks to offer insights into the hidden character of her subjects through visual codes and exaggerated features. Her version of magic realism has been termed "white violence" because of her use of black humor and fantasy to depict the darker side of humanity.

Like a researcher she puts a drop of the blood of each theme under the microscope. Each painting is analyzed without moral judgments. It takes considerable skill and a great deal of time to observe these subjects and compose this art so well, hence the small formats. The viewer peers into a miniature world, unlocks a key and enters armed with a magnifying glass, expecting to come close enough to hear a whisper, to feel a pinch, to discover a hidden secret, and perhaps to crack a smile.

The contents, the formats, the technique, the texts (written thoughts), all conform a unique work of art and invite the viewer to approach, to get closer and closer. The small size perhaps makes an audience feel safe, but like a spider draws a fly into its web, de la Hoz seeks to entrap the viewer rationally as well as viscerally.

Marianela de la Hoz artwork has been exhibited in prestigious galleries as well as in several museums, universities and cultural institutes in her native Mexico, in the USA where she resides since 2001, and in Canada, Dubai, Japan and Germany.

Bhavna Mehta

Bhavna Mehta draws with a knife, cutting paper to tell visual stories. Her work is based on the idea that everything is connected. Starting with a single sheet of paper, she cuts out shapes to reveal the image. She was raised in India where pattern and color are part of daily life. The abundance of these memories roots her work. Whether it's a figurative story or one inspired by a line from a song, her goal is to build a narrative with a universal theme. In telling one story in a particular setting, she hopes to speak in a common language about cultural and personal associations. Mehta has been exhibiting her work since 2009 and her work was reviewed in Art Ltd in 2013. She has engineering degrees from both India and US and worked as a software engineer for many years before turning to art. She learned paper cutting from Beatrice Coron at Penland School of Craft. She is now the Education Chair for San Diego Book Arts and teaches workshops all over San Diego County. Bhavna Mehta is represented by Noel Baza Fine Art

Notes by Roxana Velásquez, Maruja, Baldwin Executive Director, San Diego Museum of Art on Marianela de la Hoz

Marianela de la Hoz is looking back at an impressive and long-standing career in the arts. I have had the pleasure of knowing her for more than a decade during my tenure as the Director of the Museo Nacional de Arte in Mexico City. Her vast experience in using a variety of different media is put forward in her powerful works such as paintings, drawings, and jewelry. Marianela's work is both personal and universal. It speaks in the language of representational art yet, by drawing from Surrealist strategies, lends it uncanny resonances and symbolic power.

Her last exhibition at The San Diego Museum of Art Marianela de la Hoz: Heaven and Earth, the Determined Freedom of an Undetermined Life is the latest attest to her invaluable contributions in combining traditional and contemporary art in a meaningful way. The altarpiece she has created for Heaven and Earth, the Determined Freedom of an Undetermined Life references her own life and loved-ones at the same time that it invokes biblical narratives and objects of everyday life.

For this altar piece the inspiration was the Museum's Madonna and Child by Carlo Crivelli. Both artists have many things in common, including the use of egg tempera, though Marianela de la Hoz is more enticed by Eve than the Virgin Mother. Their effect is to draw the audience in close to the work, encouraging them to study their particulars, to be surprised by their unexpectedness, to delight at their ingenuity and humor, and to consider their moving implications. The experience is intimate, but the symbolic of each detail is profound. The result is a surreal and stark exploration of free will and fate, body and soul, art and religion, and the lives of women. We, at the San Diego Museum of Art, are thrilled to have this particular work of art by Marianela de la Hoz in our collection.

Notes by Constance Y. White, Art Program Manager, San Diego International Airport on Bhavna Mehta

Bhavna's approach to her work becomes a metaphoric portrait of herself.

Based on the idea that everything is connected...figures, botanical motifs, symbolic elements and words form the connections within and beyond each single sheet of paper. The intricacy of connections is essential for the entire piece to hang together. Life is so full. Characters, connections, commitments, conversations, collisions - all of this combines to make up our existence.

Bhavna Mehta

Bhavna uses the traditional craft of cutting paper to create tapestries of visual stories contoured around a central character or theme. At first glance, her work communicates like a universal language: immediately intriguing, ancient and contemporary, decorative and narrative, representational and abstract. Each exact linear cut leads its viewers' eyes to trace every line until the entire work is read. The experience is personally captivating like reading a sacred manuscript.

From Bhavna's Modern Women to her Open a Window series, I liken her work to the oral tradition of telling stories - each possessing its own spiritual essence and worthy of celebrating generationally.

Notes by Danielle Susalla Derry, curator, Oceanside Museum of Art on Bhavna Mehta

In her imaginative and labor intensive paper works, Bhavna Mehta is able to create poignant visual narratives that juxtapose memories of India with contemporary subject matter. I was first drawn to her work upon seeing her Modern Woman Stories series and was intrigued by her complex technique, poetic use of symbolic imagery, and her ability to express the universal experiences that connect modern woman around the world. As a woman trying to juggle all the important things in my life it is refreshing to know that I am not alone and that other women are going through the same challenges with strength and grace.

Philipp Scholz Rittermann

From nocturnal scenes of industry to views of pristine landscape, Philipp Scholz Rittermann's work spans opposite ends of our environment. His work is held in over one hundred public, private and corporate collections, from MoMA, New York to the Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris, France. Scholz Rittermann exhibits in national, and international venues. In 2001, he was the subject of a mid-career survey at San Diego's Museum of Photographic Art. The exhibition was accompanied by the monograph of Rittermann's work, Navigating by Light. In 2011, MCASD was proud to present the exhibition Emperor's River: Philipp Scholz Rittermann, which captured China's rapidly evolving economy with a study of life along its historic Grand Canal. Philipp Scholz Rittermann has been teaching photography for over thirty years in the USA and abroad.

Joseph Huppert

Joseph Huppert was born in Mesa, Arizona and grew up Phoenix and discovered early that drawing was his passion. He likes the simplicity of using just a few materials, for example graphic lead on a mylar substrate. He soon learned that although University was not for him, he had a hunger for information, first art history then art theory, but most importantly the books by the artist in their own words when clear and concise. One artist led to another as he explored the writings of Donald Jude, Sol LeWitt, and Robert Smithson. He admired the words and eventually with direct experience the artist Robert Irwin. He helped install his 2007 show at the Museum of Contemporary Art San Diego and now works as a full time assistant to Irwin. They both share the love of dance and often use the metaphor of improvisation to explain a process which has similarities. Huppert was a break dancer, Irwin loves jazz.

Huppert chooses to work outside the context of museum and galleries with guerrilla type intervention but has in the past few years accepted the challenges of exhibiting at Ice Gallery and Bread and Salt. The inside space has limitation that he embraces including the dimensions of the space, entry point, and light and that led him to a bias toward geometry in those processes. Working now with Philipp Scholz Ritterman, they will be exploring the more limitless outdoor spaces where both will influence the outcome in a series on Collaborative Interventions.

Notes by Kathryn Kanjo, Chief Curator and Head of Curatorial, The Museum of Contemporary Art San Diego on Philipp Scholz Ritterman

Whether photographing industrial activity or natural terrain, the representation of time has been an abiding interest for Philipp Scholz Rittermann. Throughout his career, Rittermann's photographs have captured the swell of manufacturing and the expanse of nature in arresting images. His undulating landscapes and nocturnal scenes have, in recent years, given way to an even greater scale. Early works often combine several image panels either to create juxtapositions or to suggest continuity. Today, through the digital combination of multiple views shot in rapid succession, Rittermann presents expansive vistas in a seamless whole. In a lone panorama, Rittermann presents what cannot be apprehended in a single glance. If he previously created a kind of fold in time, a visual stagger, Rittermann now uses digital compositions to offer an enveloping clarity. The resulting scale and focus present viewers with a heightened reality of place. His patient renderings result not in a fantastical interpretation but a clarified accuracy. Rittermann's pictures hold time and allow viewers to see—and to study—what they couldn't otherwise discern: to perceive beyond the limits of their senses.

Notes by Ben Strauss-Malcolm, director Quint Gallery on Joseph Huppert

Each marking that artist Joseph Huppert makes derives from a preconceived objective before the mark is ever made. As each graphite line intersects on a drawing, or each tapeline overlaps on an installation, the work entralls the viewer as line reveals purpose. I am often left bewildered, puzzled, and overwhelmed by the intention that Mr. Huppert puts forth within his work. He generates a sensation of movement within his pieces, and in turn, his artwork seems to hum and dance on the optic nerve of the viewer as he or she studies the piece. If you allow yourself the time, the work becomes meditative. As one interacts with the work and tunes inward, one finds oneself to be tuning out, a feat which Mr. Huppert seems to do with great ease and grace, and these days certainly not an easy feat to achieve.

I challenge you to allow yourself to be immersed in the work of Joseph Huppert, and seek out the subtleties that he presents in what often tends to be his refined and minimal approach to his artistic practice. If you do this you will be greatly rewarded.
