SAN DIEGO (March 3, 2022) – San Diego Visual Arts Network is pleased to announce the four recipients of the 2022 San Diego Art Prize and the new process for selecting the recipients. Congratulations to Alida Cervantes, Angélica Escoto, Carlos Castro Arias and Cognate Collective for being selected to receive the 2022 SD Art Prize (Bios below). Their outstanding creativity, dedication to their work and contributions to our region have made them stand out to the four national and international curators who selected them from the nominations made by 17 local art professionals.

This year we are thrilled to introduce the four national and international curators from respected institutions who selected the four recipients from the nominee list. This exciting change allows the SD Art Prize to further our mission to support local artists' careers by promoting the artists to curators outside of our region. This also rewards all nominees by creating an opportunity to expose our local talent to opportunities worldwide.

The four curators are as follows:

San Francisco Museum of Modern Art - Jovanna Venegas, Assistant Curator of Contemporary Art

Whitney Museum, New York - Marcela Guerrero, Assistant Curator

Frost Art Museum, Florida - Amy Galpin, Chief Curator

Mexico City & Vienna, Austria - José Springer, Independent Curator

To give an international audience a taste of the work of these artists, this will be preceded with a booth at Art San Diego Sept. 9-11th, 2022.

The SD Art Prize Committee and a changing independent panel of arts professionals selected from our local museums, journalists, curators, educators, and the previous year's SD Art Prize recipients are asked each year to submit nominations for artists who have exhibited outstanding creativity and have contributed their

SD Art Prize 2021 Recipients

Alida Cervantes

Alida Cervantes (b. 1972) is a Mexican artist who lives and works in the Tijuana and San Diego border region. Traveling daily between the US and Mexico, Cervante creates work characterized by an interest in power relations between race, class, gender and even species. She explores these hierarchies both at the level of sexual or intimate relationships and on the broad stages of history and politics. Cervantes earned a BA from the University of California, San Diego (1995), then studied at Florence's Scuola di Arte Lorenzo de' Medici for two years. In 2013, she earned her MFA from the University of California, San Diego. Alida Cervantes' work is part of the Museum of Contemporary Art San Diego, the Charles Saatchi Collection, London, and the Jorge M. Perez Collection.

Angélica Escoto

Angélica Escoto (b. 1967) is a multidisciplinary artist and photographer living and working in Tijuana, Mexico. She studied journalism in Mexico City, worked as an editor in several Mexican regional newspapers and has published work internationally. Escoto came to photography and the visual arts more than 30 years ago. Her photographic work explores narratives around existence, origin and identity often using autobiographical subject matter over time. In addition, Escoto uses literature to tie themes from history, geology, biology and astrophysics into her work. Angélica Escoto has exhibited extensively across the U.S., Europe and Latin America.

Carlos Castro Arias

Carlos Castro Arias, is Colombian artist, professor and musician. His practice departs from the appropriation of historical images and the formal and symbolic re-contextualization of found objects. Castro's work explores elements of the individual and collective identity and aims to bring to light muted histories and ignored points of view. He received a BA from the Universidad Jorge Tadeo Lozano, Bogota, in 2002; in 2008 he attained a Fulbright Scholarship to go San Francisco Art Institute, where he got an MFA in Painting in 2010. Castro currently works as an associate professor at San Diego State University. In the last seven years alone, the artwork of Carlos Castro Arias has been featured in nine solo exhibitions and more than forty invitational group exhibitions. Those venues include museums and galleries in Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia, France, Mexico, New Zealand, Peru, Spain, Sweden, the United States, and Venezuela.

Cognate Collective

Cog•nate Collective develops research projects, public interventions, and experimental pedagogical programs in collaboration with communities across the US/Mexico border region.

Since beginning their collaboration in 2010, their work has interrogated the evolution of the border as it is simultaneously erased by neoliberal economic policies and bolstered through increased militarization. It has traced the fallout of this incongruence for migrant communities on either side of the border. As a result, their inter-disciplinary projects often address issues of citizenship, migration, informal economies, and popular cultural, arguing for understanding the border as a region that expands and contracts with the movement of people and objects. They have exhibited work locally and internationally at venues including the Museum of Contemporary Art San Diego, the Getty Center, The Craft Contemporary, School of the Art Institute of Chicago, FLACSO Arte Actual in Quito, Ecuador, and the Organ Kritischer Kunst in Berlin, Germany. Regionalia, a monograph of their work was published by X Artists' Books in 2020.

Cog•nate is a collaboration between Misael Diaz, Assistant Professor of Art, Media, and Design at California State University, San Marcos and Amy Sanchez Arteaga, Lecturer of Art History at San Diego State University. Their practice is currently based in National City, CA, and they work between Tijuana, BC and Los Angeles, CA.
